

AUG 27: RALLY AGAINST HATE

Far right extremists are coming to Berkeley and we'll counter their hate speech with a peaceful rally!

Join our Rally Against Hate. Far-right extremists are coming to Berkeley to disrupt our community. We are planning a peaceful, non-violent rally to counter their hate speech on August 27 at Addison St. and Oxford St. in Berkeley at 10:30AM.

We are a diverse group of Berkeley residents and people who work in Berkeley who believe in women rights, immigrant rights, LGBTQ rights and worker rights. We are students, teachers, seniors, city workers, and working families coming together for a peaceful rally against hate speech.

Our peaceful Rally Against Hate will not be in the same physical space or time as the far-right extremists' rally in Berkeley.

The right wing extremists plan to test Berkeley's worldwide reputation as the bedrock of free speech, tolerance and peaceful assembly by inciting violence with their hate speech.

Our gathering will organize the peaceful alternative to their white nationalist ideals, their hateful islamophobic views, their anti-immigrant and trans-phobic speech – ideals that are tearing families and communities apart. Join us on August 27 to tell the world that the majority of Americans reject violence and bigotry.

WHAT: A peaceful, non-violent rally to counter far-right extremists' hate speech.
